Americans Largely Silent as Their Nation is Systematically Destroyed

By J.B. Williams, Canada Free Press

J.B. Williams is a businessman, a husband, a father, and a writer. A no-nonsense commentator on American politics, American history; and American philosophy, Williams is published nationwide and in many countries around the world. His website is jb_williams.com.

Editor's Note: Since Barack Obama was inaugurated five months ago, trillions of dollars in taxpayer debt have been foolishly poured into the bottomless black hole of leftist wealth redistribution programs under the guise of economic "stimulus" or "stabilization" legislation. The jobless rate has reached a level not seen since 1983 – now at 9.4 percent and hundreds of thousands of jobs continue to be lost each month. Obama and his One World government in Washington, D.C. have seized banks and private firms and appropriated power to themselves on a scale not seen since FDR.

Many Americans stumble through their daily routine as if nothing is happening; however there are insightful observers who are wondering if the agenda of the G20 London Summit in early April focused on one0world government, rather than speeding the recovery from the worldwide recession, as was touted by the controlled media.

The following article, written by J.B. Williams of Canada Free Press, provides a clear, unvarnished commentary on the current economic calamity in the United States. It is published here with permission from the writer

"Obamanation" took the nation from a trillion in debt to over $4trillion in debt in the first sixty days [of his presidency], with even more federal spending promised, which could put the nation $10 trillion in debt before the 2010 mid-term election cycle. Amnesty for illegals and ACORN-led redistricting will make 2020 and beyond a moot point.

Still, beyond the movement to mail tea bags to members of congress or file another legal demand for proof of Obama's constitution eligibility for the office he holds – both of which are like whistling in the breeze – the people remain largely silent.

Threatened with a Soup Line Existence

The American people would never trade personal freedom for the false promise of federally redistributed "free stuff" under some ill-fated socialist experiment, unless they were first threatened with a soup line existence.

And so it shall be...

Fifty percent of their life savings and 30 percent of their home values have already evaporated into thin air. National unemployment is driving towards double digits as home foreclosures continue to mount.

With their backs against the wall, confused by a daily diet of media manipulated headlines aimed at scaring the public into submission, and convinced that our nation's complex woes demand a solution far too complicated for the average peasant to comprehend, the people find themselves in a state of terminal paralysis.

Incompetent Evil in Charge

The same people responsible for the many disasters now surround every American household were elected in 2006 and 2008 to fix what they broke. Instead of reversing course and placing their faith in the principles of freedom, they are installing more of the same failed entitlement policies that created the problem – and they are doing so at a fevered pace.

The folks currently in charge of the nation don't like anything at all about the nation that once was. They have a very different vision for America – one based on redistribution of "free stuff," not equal access to freedom.

At the foundation of personal freedom is the right to make your own decisions, invest and risk your own capital, own your own property and keep that which you are willing to work and sacrifice to earn. It's called economic freedom, a.k.a. capitalism.

But capitalism has become public enemy #1 in America today, thanks to decades of class warfare and the art of division via social envy – all for the purpose of political gain.

Life, liberty and the right to individually define and pursue happiness has been replaced with the right of some to take from others against their will, in the name of a greater common good. It is best defined as the entitlement mentality.

The Change Agent's New World Dictionary

Old concepts have been redefined. Capitalism is now referred to as Fascism. Personal ambition is now called greed. Those who seek access to other people's rightful earnings are called charitable, and those who demand a right only that which they earn, are called greedy.

It isn't just the words that have new definitions. The concepts have new meaning as a result.

Words like socialism and communism no longer have a negative connotation attached to them. Most Americans have no idea what they are anymore, or why they don't want to find out the hard way.

The concept of liberal interpretations limits the meaning of words only to one's individual imagination. The concept of liberal interpretations limits the meaning of words only to one's individual imagination. The Constitution means only what someone imagines it to mean. If the shoe doesn't quite fit, a new definition will solve the problem.

What Are Americans Waiting for?

I don't know what it will take to wake up the average American, but whatever it is, it hasn't happened yet . . .

The people who are currently stocking up on food, water, guns and ammo in record numbers – causing shortages in all the above at the retail level – are clearly awake and anticipating something, but they are not sure what. Meet the “extremists” . . .

Concerned citizens, who are trying to get a court somewhere in America to hear the arguments concerning the most secretive, corrupt president in U.S. history have been awake for a long time. Meet the “birthers.” But they continue to have trouble waking anyone else up, including those in the so-called halls of justice.

Is it a bankrupt dollar and a new international currency that will get their attention? A North American Union? An ACORN army on their doorstep? What will be the final straw that breaks the proverbial camel's back?

I don't have the answer. Frankly, I expected the people to revolt long before now. Clearly, I had underestimated the depth of apathy and tolerance for anti-American nonsense in the average American today. But then, so did our nation's founders, who I am certain are rolling over in their graves in disgust by now.

The Silent Consent Continues

Nobody knows for how long or at what expense, but so far, the people remain silent and Washington continues to profitably interpret the silence as broad-based consent.

At this late date, I have no idea what will wake up these silent Americans or how they might react once they are finally awake and ready to engage in self-governance. However, I am sure about two things:

When they finally do awaken, they are going to be really angry. . .but until then, the anti-American left will not let up.

The clock isn't just ticking. Washington, D.C. is currently dismantling America, individual right by individual right, in an unprecedented, massive, multifaceted assault on all things American.

If you are not familiar with the Democratic Socialists of America or their legislative branch, the Congressional Progressive Caucus, I strongly suggest you take time to learn who they are. They are in charge of your nation. This is who the average American is up against and they are a very well funded and organized enemy of America.

You will not be able to take your country back without putting these two organizations out of business. The longer you wait, the tougher the battle, and the higher the price.

Editor's Note: The Republican Party is currently fragmented and disorganized, lacking the leadership to aggressively confront the leftist juggernaut running rampant in D.C.

A great many Americans are under the spell of elitist, controlled media propaganda, and they either do not know or have forgotten the simple truths upon which this nation was founded. Confused by a daily diet of misinformation and misleading political babble, many fail to understand that the most complex problems require the simplest solutions: when all else fails, return to the basics!

Let us pray that Americans in sufficient numbers will wake up in time to save our nation. The chart below illustrates the direction that free and open societies of the past have taken when their citizens foolishly decided to leave the “unsavory business of politics” to someone else.
